16TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE

THE CONFERENCE

Committee of 100 conferences serve as valuable forums for the discussion of issues pertaining to U.S.-China relations and Asian American progress. Inaugurated in 1991, the three-day annual conference takes place in the month of April and features respected leaders in academia, the arts, business, government, science, technology, and more as panelists and speakers. Conference venues and host cities rotate from year to year between the San Francisco Bay Area, New York City, Washington D.C., and the greater Los Angeles area to highlight the strengths of each region while attracting an increasingly national—and international—following of conference attendees. An elegant Gala Dinner is traditionally held during the conference, and a Saturday mentoring program was added in 2003 to encourage and inspire young professionals through intimate, roundtable career discussions with Committee of 100 members.
